- ✓ Review the general education requirements. (<http://www.gened.umd.edu/>)
 - a. The benefit to getting an AA from a Maryland community college is that should you earn an AA and be admitted to UMD your lower level general education requirements may be considered satisfied – you can review the policy in full below:
<http://www.gened.umd.edu/documents/GenEdTransferPolicy.pdf>
 - b. Often, getting an general studies AA versus an AA in a specific major or field is a better fit for students interested in transferring, as you can potentially include as electives in that AA program courses that would transfer to UMD to satisfy major requirements.
 - c. If you already have an accredited bachelor’s degree, your general education requirements at UMD will be considered satisfied – should you be admitted to the university. You would need to complete the major requirements to earn a degree from UMD. You can review the policy above.
- ✓ Contact the Office of Undergraduate Admissions for all questions about the transfer application and chances of admission. www.admissions.umd.edu; 301-314-8385; applymaryland@umd.edu
